Stamp Plan To Be Given Trial

Allentown-Bethlehem District Is Selected For First Experiment

MAY BE EXTENDED TO ENTIRE STATE

By EVERETT C. GERRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Oct. 5.—The federal government's surplus food stamp plan was introduced to Pennsylvania today with the approval of Gov. Arthur H. James.

The governor announced his support of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's plan to extend food stamp distribution of farm surplus products to the Allentown-Bethlehem district.

Under this plan, which was tried successfully in New York, Oklahoma and other states, surplus food products are distributed to relief families through regular retail stores by stamps given to such families by the agriculture department.

In Two Cities
Operation of the stamp system at the outset will be limited to the cities of Allentown and Bethlehem, Wallace indicated, but later would be extended to embrace all of Lehigh county.

Actual operation of the food stamp plan is expected to begin within the current month, with the state department of public assistance cooperating.

Food stamp distribution provides an outlet for farm surpluses to families on relief and those in the low-income bracket. In one of seven communities in which the plan was tested, it was pointed out, distribution was extended successfully on a broad scale to low income families.

Governor James bespoke his approval of "stamp plan disposal" of commodities designated as surplus by the agriculture department after a conference last yesterday with Secretary of Public Assistance Howard L. Russell.

high over the possible tenor of Hitler's speech, international difficulties over the rights of neutral merchant shipping, occupied attention in Berlin.

Germany, while advising neutrals to avoid zig-zag course, the use of convoys, the shielding of lights and other measures laying their vessels open to suspicion, made clear that her high seas activities would be governed by those of England.

In other words, it will be a case of "tit for tat." Germany will not search food-laden ships for contraband if Britain does not search them. Germany's real intention is to do all in her power to blockade England to the same extent as Britain blockades Germany.

CLAIM 62 VOTES IN SENATE PLEDGED TO EMBARGO REPEAL

Washington, favoring the administration bill, will wind up today's speaking schedule.

Latest perceptible strategy moves in the hot fight revealed activities of Vice President John Garner to keep the special session work restricted to neutrality. After Senator Connally (D) Texas, a close friend of Garner, injected national defense into his neutrality speech Garner observed he would have stuck to the one issue of the legislation pending, and observed to friends:

"I've always been a believer in tackling today's problems today and letting tomorrow's problem wait until tomorrow."

Conflicting Elements
Garner's observations came as a number of conflicting elements were developing in the neutrality fight itself. Administration proponents faced several new problems brought on by the debate of the past two days.

Senator Tobey (R) New Hampshire, moved to recommit the embargo repeal bill to the foreign relations committee with instructions for splitting the measure into two pieces of legislation. Proposals for drastic changes in the bill came from within the ranks of its supporters. Announcement was made by Senator Clark (D) Missouri, that he intended to "raise hell" in the foreign relations committee at its next session seeking adoption of his resolution for an investigation of all propaganda activated by the neutrality fight.

Administration leaders said they did not fear the Tobey motion, which will come up for action Monday, and predicted a counter move to lay it on the table would prevail. They denied a "test vote" on neutrality would be thus provided because, they asserted, even opponents of the administration bill would oppose the Tobey proposal. The New Hampshire senator's motion called for action on all of the restrictive provisions of the administration bill, including the so-called cash-and-carry sections, separate from the provisions repealing the arms embargo.

Change Proposed
Proposals for change came from Senator Taft (R) Ohio, who favors embargo repeal. He suggested changes substituting a provision completely isolating Europe from American trade for the "cash-and-carry" section, elimination of the 90-day credit section of cash-and-carry and extension of this section to include private as well as government purchases from the United States.

Clark said that if his investigating resolution was adopted it would "undoubtedly provide access to diplomatic correspondence," and pointed out that World War afterwards showed British statesmen writing forceful arguments dealing with American action in their communications with the state department.

Word came to administration leaders this morning that Senator Barbour (R) New Jersey, one of the senators who has been listed as "doubtful," has made up his mind on the neutrality question. There were indications that he would come over to favor the repeal bill, but Senator Barbour sent word that he would not make public his decision until Friday. When and if he does decide to support embargo repeal, his vote will give the administration claim to 63 votes for its legislation.

during the past year. It has been much easier to dispose of eggs at auction than by former methods, and fair prices have been realized at all seasons. One feature worthy of mention is that eggs are graded according to size. Before the auction was instituted poultrymen who had big eggs to sell didn't get any more for them than the fellow with little eggs. We never did see any good reason for lean eggs selling as high as fat ones.

A woman who resides on Wallace avenue has reported to Pa. News that Hallowe'eners have started their pranks already. She thinks it a little early for that sort of thing and Pa. News is inclined to agree with her. Hallowe'eners think it is funny to destroy property by throwing rotten apples or rotten tomatoes on porches and against houses, but very often stains are left that cannot be removed. Pa. News understands that in some states there are laws against Hallowe'en pranks. We like to see people have fun but we don't think it is necessary to destroy other people's property in order to do so.

Announcement by Superintendent of Schools, John C. Syling, that a teachers institute will be held in the Union township high school, October 18-19, recalls that teachers institutes date back in Lawrence county to civil war days. The first records of a teachers' institute relate that one was held on April 8th, 1862, at Mt. Jackson. Stephen Morrison was then county superintendent. The next institute was at what was known as college hall, New Castle, on October 20, 1862, while a third was held at college hall, New Wilmington, Oct. 5, 1863. At all three, resolutions relating to the civil war were passed. Institutes have been held regularly ever since, the coming meeting in Union high school being the 86th in numerical order.

An observant reader of the Pa. News column, referring to a recent item regarding the scarcity of horses, says that in traveling through the county last spring and summer he observed several year old and quite a number of spring colts. One particular instance was that on the W. B. McQuiston farm on the New Castle-New Wilmington road, where he observed four mares and an equal number of spring colts.

Local hunters who have been out after woodcock since the season was ushered in this week, report that they find the birds pretty scarce. Woodcock usually frequent swampy lowlands, where they dine on angleworms and bugs. The past season has been so dry, and the recent rains have done so little good, that it is still difficult to find good woodcock territory. Woodcock hunting has not amounted to much here for a number of years.

Burning of another Lawrence county barn a few days ago emphasizes the hazard which the average farmer runs. Lightning has been responsible for several fires, but the origin of the fire on the John Morris farm north of town is a mystery, although many have originated from spontaneous combustion. From whatever cause a barn fire occurs, it is a real tragedy to the owner of a farm. Usually farmers are exceedingly careful with lights or fire about their premises, but it is the unforeseen that happens. Insurance may help compensate for a financial loss, but the shock of a fire is a nerve racking experience from which a farmer does not quickly recover.

As this is the potato digging season, it may be well to inquire into the origin of the spud. According to the best informed spudologists, potatoes first grew in South America. Until Columbus discovered America and the early explorers carried the curious plant back to the Old World, potatoes were unknown in Europe. In fact they were not known in North America until after the middle of the 16th century, when they were first brought to Virginia from Peru.

of the topnotchers of his day. Around 1902 or 1903 he came to New Castle and in the years that followed he trained such men as Tony Ross, Tom McMahon, Patsy Brannan, Jimmie Dunn, Chip and others. Few New Castle people did not know Jimmie Dime. He represented the sports world as it was in its glory and today hundreds of people who were proud to call him friend are saddened by his passing. With him passes a colorful era in the local sports history.

The boxers he trained were his lifelong friends. They knew Dime not only as an astute coach but as a "real sportsman," which is as high a compliment as can be given any man.

Athletic Instructor For T. R. He took boxing lessons from 1887 to 1889 from Dave Sheridan and Bobby Burns of Massachusetts, Billie McLean and Mike Donovan of New York City, and Jim Mace of England, and he had his first fight on Christmas Eve, 1889.

At one time he was a coach of running at a New York state college and during the administration of Theodore Roosevelt as governor of New York, Dime was athletic instructor to Roosevelt and he was injured when struck by an automobile on Croton avenue and he was handicapped considerably by the accident. However, he continued until a year ago to teach boxers. Several weeks ago he was forced to take to his bed and his condition gradually grew worse.

His wife, Mary, died last November. He is survived by two brothers, Patrick and Michael Fox, of Amsterdam, N. Y., his friend, say: "High mass of requiem will be celebrated by Rev. Fr. Joseph A. Doerr in St. Joseph's church Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock and interment will be in St. Joseph's cemetery. The body is now at the Jos. B. Leyde mortuary, Highland at Winter.

halled the strong stand he adopted in the face of the German "peace offensive" and the Berlin hints that Soviet Russia might leap into the war on the side of the Reich.

Has Nation's Support
Observers felt that Daladier is assured of strong support from virtually the entire nation, whatever he does.

One drastic action that Daladier took was the issuance of a decree closing parliament. The decree was published this morning in the Journal Officiel.

This leaves the premier's hands free to deal with French Communists as he sees fit, without interference from the senate or chamber of deputies.

Immediately there arose lively speculation as to what Daladier will do about the Reds, and the general expectation was that he would undertake firm action.

It was Daladier who smashed the popular front a year ago when he formed his "salvation" government and for the first time took a strong stand against the Communists by crushing their general strike almost before it began. His victory on that occasion was complete, and he is expected to remember that fact in his future dealings with the Communists.

As a significant indication of what may now be in store for Communists who refuse to support Daladier, authoritative circles pointed to the arrest of 30 Communist signatories of a "peace petition." They are being held for a military trial which is expected to mark another step in the government's campaign against "Communist defeatists."

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

USE OF CAR IS PROBLEM

A GREAT DEAL of family unhappiness radiates about the family car.

One time my wife and I were riding with another pair of parents, as their guests. They were making plans for the evening. Said the father to the mother, "Perhaps Jim will let us have the car tonight."

"Do you think he will?" the mother answered.
"He should," rejoined the father. "He has had it every night this week." (It was Friday.) It turned out that Jim used the car that night. On another occasion my wife and I had planned to go out, using the car, but we were reminded by our youngest son that he had a date. My first reaction was that he should break this date. But the mother, usually much wiser than I am under trying circumstances, quietly explained to me (in the lady's absence) that this was one of the first dates he had made and probably was taking considerable courage on his part. I surrendered and properly, too. I think, in this instance, since no rules about the use of the car had been worked out or announced.

Set Up Rules

But right then and there my wife and I, in accord, informed this boy that henceforth his parents would come first in respect to the car, that before making another date he must first make sure we did not choose to use the car at the same time.

Then we all agreed that he should limit his expectations to Friday and Saturday nights during school months, and plan far enough ahead so that there be no needless conflict. Being a reasonable chap, he agreeably accepted the plans. To date it has proved highly satisfactory. I am sure there would be far fewer vexations over the family car if some such program were generally worked out with the young people of the family.

With all our three children we made it a strict rule that the first experience at driving should not come until the dawn of the legal driving age of each child. Every one of them had his first driving lesson on his or her birthday.

Safe and Legal

This plan not only obviated unnecessary annoyances but recognized obedience to the state laws and made our liability insurance good. Some tragic cases have come to my attention of children driving under legal age and encountering an accident involving serious liability, when, of course, the liability insurance was useless. All too few parents realize that no matter how large a liability insurance policy they carry, this policy will not cover any loss incurred in an accident in which a person was driving illegally.

Reasonable family regulations are easily enforced if they are definite. Moreover, our children grow selfish when we grant them privileges which we know to be unwise and make sacrifices for them which we know to be unfair to ourselves. Once your child begins driving, let him prove he will be careful. Upon clear evidence of the first case of careless driving by him, take away his privilege of driving for a definite period. Wise parents will, in effect, revoke the driving license of the youth rather than wait until after an inevitable serious accident to have a judge do so.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Do you advise having the child wash his mouth out with soap after he swears or uses other naughty words?
A. No; soap was never meant for such purpose; not fair to the soap nor good for the child. Usually, if there is a fine relationship between parent and child, the youngster can be led to see that "in our home we do not say such things."

If, however, punishment seems necessary, let it be some means of connecting the act with immediate discomfort. Make sure the punishment associates immediate pain of some sort with the act to be forbidden. All living creatures tend not to repeat what promises pain.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TRIUMPH

What on earth can be expected more of any man than this? That his day should be deserving of his children's welcoming kiss. That his mind stay free from malice and his home stay bright with cheer.

And his neighbors give approval to his conduct through the year?

Fame and fortune mean but little. Man may both of them attain. And still be a fearful creature—selfish, cruel, sly and vain.

While another not so grasping and content with winning small. May be everywhere respected and admired by one and all.

It is difficult precisely here to judge another's worth. Sometimes the richest spirits own the fewest goods of earth. And sometimes the fattest purses and the fruitfulness of lands. Fall by curious circumstances into most unworthy hands.

So the final test of triumph doesn't lie in gain or skill. And it isn't strength of muscle and it isn't strength of will. It's in something fine and tender by the soul of man possessed.

Which achieves the admiration of the ones who know him best.

Have you ever been introduced to a Dr. so-and-so and then, some time later, learned that instead of being a doctor of medicine, as you thought, he turned out to be a corn-cutter or one who fits spectacles to people's noses? A doctor might belong to any one of several widely different professions. He may be a Doctor of Divinity or a dentist or even a veterinarian. He may be a college professor or just a graduate who received a Master's degree for a thesis which he had written on the Peritonum of the Pollywog. In Germany every college graduate is a "Herr Doktor" and most of them modestly prefix the title to their names on their business cards and their correspondence. All of which sometimes create complications and lead to embarrassing situations, such as when the elderly Mrs. Jackson was taken ill with what appeared to be appendicitis at about the time that the new preacher had come to town. The family doctor being away, another doctor was called, made his examination in his best bedside manner and left saying that he would call again soon. The daughter saw the doctor to the door. Upon her return to the sick-room, the mother remarked that it was nice of the new preacher to have paid her a visit on his first day in town. "Why no, mother," the daughter corrected, "that wasn't the preacher—he was the physician." The patient closed her eyes. "I rather thought," she murmured, "that he was somewhat friendly for a preacher."

'She was born to be the wife of a man,' they let down their hair and became confidential. The woman we know very well said: 'I have not always lived this luxurious life; I was a stenographer before my marriage.' The other woman replied, 'Darling, you have nothing on me. So was I.' Many isolationists are a bit inconsistent in one respect.

They haven't objected especially to sales of American munitions to Japan, for use against Chinese. The Chinese, with whom most Americans sympathize, can't come over here for war materials; they haven't the shipping. The Japs have, and have done a lot of buying in this country. Why didn't the isolationists choke them off a good deal sooner? Apparently because it didn't occur to them. It was quite an important oversight, from the Chinese standpoint.

What's What At A Glance

Isolationists Star Debaters
Prove To Be Best Orators Now
Modificationists In Majority

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—From the very beginning of the current extra session of congress it's been evident that advocates of modification of the Nye neutrality law had this law's 100 per cent stand-patters outnumbered. They haven't had the 100 per cent centers out-orated, though. That the modificationists ultimately would win has been the best betting all along. But they're not doing it spectacularly. The 100 per cent crowd has been making the welkin ring. The modificationists simply have argued soberly, depending on their obvious numerical superiority—upon victory to the accompaniment of no particular outbursts of eloquence.

Ultra-isolationists, like Senators Borah, Nye, Clark and Johnson of California, no doubt realized from the first that they'd be beaten in the long run, but they're sparkling talkers. They've been making a fight to the bitter end, such as Warsaw's admirable regardless of its windup.

The modificationists, led by Senator Pittman, chairman of the upper house's foreign affairs committee, have been moderate reasoners, not impassioned speech makers. Being sure that they were in a majority, they've been pretty calm about it, relying on their preponderant voting strength without shooting off many fireworks.

This may have been very rational. The fact remains that a highly vocal modificationist had a good chance to make himself so conspicuous as to figure among future presidential possibilities. Nobody has seized the opportunity. The unqualified isolationists have done the star debating, but their creditable performance on the legislative floor won't profit 'em materially, because they're doomed to lose, in the last analysis, anyway.

Which Is Which?

How do the out-and-out isolationists and the modificationists differ?

It seems like a foolish question to ask, considering how often it already has been asked and answered. Yet I've seen folks who don't appear to know precisely what the correct definitions are.

The Nye law provides essentially that we can't sell war stuff to any belligerent nation. The modificationists contend that we should sell to any country that can send its own ships here and take its explosives away in these same ships, after previously having paid for them.

The alleged hitch in the Nye law is that Britain and France can do this, since they have plenty of vessels to come and get their American war junk, if our law permits; whereas Germany, lacking the necessary craft to handle its own transportation, can't do it.

Ten-tonic "cash and carrying" in any case. The modificationists argue that, indirectly, this helps Hitler, because it shuts the Anglo-French alliance off from a source of supplies it otherwise could draw on.

So it isn't true American neutrality, argue the modificationists. They want us to sell to anybody who can "come and get" what's purchased.

They say that, if the British and French can do it, that's their good luck; if Adolf can't, that's his funeral. It's none of our business, either way, according to the modificationists.

Isolation's Version

The strict isolationists' version is that what the modificationists really want is to aid the democracies against totalitarianism.

In their sympathies the overwhelming bulk of the isolationists also unquestionably wish the democracies well, but not to the extent of involving Uncle Sam in any overseas conflict, and they think that American sales of arms to ANY direction of belligerents is a step in that direction.

The European democracies they'll be sorry; nevertheless they don't want the western hemisphere mixed up in it.

Many isolationists are a bit inconsistent in one respect.

They haven't objected especially to sales of American munitions to Japan, for use against Chinese. The Chinese, with whom most Americans sympathize, can't come over here for war materials; they haven't the shipping. The Japs have, and have done a lot of buying in this country. Why didn't the isolationists choke them off a good deal sooner? Apparently because it didn't occur to them. It was quite an important oversight, from the Chinese standpoint.

Big Business And War

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. IF, despite all efforts to remain neutral, eventually we get into this European war it isn't going to be possible to repeat the old falsehood that we were forced in by the "international bankers," the "munition makers" and the "profit hogs" of big business.

THAT particular idea has been harped on for nearly twenty years by the professional liberals. It has been the favorite thesis of every soap-box orator in the country and the farther they were to the left the more hotly did they proclaim that it was the greedy financiers and conscienceless industrialists who were responsible for the "slaughter of our American boys" in the last European conflict.

THIS time that stuff is stone cold. This time it is clear that business and finance are more solidly against our participation in the war than any other element we have. Many of our leading bankers and business men are strongly in favor of the President's proposals to life the embargo against arms and ammunition; some, like Mr. Henry Ford and Mr. Ernest Weir, the steel magnate, favor the retention of the embargo. But whether they are with the President or not, there isn't an outstanding business man or banker in America who isn't anxious that the United States should avoid involvement.

AND this includes the much maligned House of Morgan and the equally maligned du Ponts, favorite targets of the demagogues in both political parties and without whom the journalistic and political breast-beaters of the so-called "liberal movement" would be utterly at a loss. It is not necessary to ascribe the conviction of these business and industrial leaders that "we can and must stay out of the war"—to any higher motive than that of enlightened selfishness. On that ground alone, their insistence upon keeping aloof seems soundly based. For one thing, there is the practically unanimous belief among financial authorities that, so far from bringing prosperity, nothing would be more devastating to our general economic welfare or more dangerous to our institutions than actual participation in another European war. In lesser degree they believe that this to be true if we stay out, but permit a great war boom to develop unchecked. Business and finance are terribly afraid of the first, only less afraid of the second.

BASED on experiences of the last war, they can see nothing more than a temporary prosperity in either of these things, a prosperity certain to be followed, when peace comes, by a frightful washback genuinely disastrous. Not only would there be a depression of unprecedented extent, but there would be created social, political and labor (Continued On Page Five)

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

TRAINED FISH!

This is the time of the year when the world is entertained with big "fish stories." One comes from Saranac Lake, N. Y.

A chap says he has trained a black bass to come for its meals when the dinner bell is rung. This is how the training began, according to the "fish story" teller:

Last spring he noticed a bass of good size in the water at his boat landing and dropped bits of food to it, which the fish ate greedily. It soon became so tame that it rose to the surface whenever he appeared at the landing.

When the bass did not show up promptly, the chap would whistle, bringing Mr. Bass up in a hurry. Later, out of curiosity he rang the dinner bell, which had the same effect.

Perhaps any other noise the chap could make would bring the fish to the surface, but he has gotten a great kick out of showing his friends, and especially the doubters among them, how to attract fish with a dinner bell.

Three Thousand Milk Producers Meet In Pittsburgh

Question Of Milk Price Adjustment Before Milk Control Board

Some three thousand milk producers are in Pittsburgh today where the matter of adjustment of milk prices comes before the Pennsylvania Milk Control board. Lawrence county is well represented, officially and otherwise. John B. Shaw of Washington township, president of the Keystone Milk Producers association, is present to represent his group and also as a producer.

With the Keystone organization the United Farmers of America, which operates through Westmoreland county, is represented and individual producers from many western Pennsylvania counties are present.

The producers are asking for two things, first that the classification of milk be abandoned and that they be paid $3 per hundred for all milk. At the present time they are getting $2.70 per hundred for class 1 milk which is the milk that goes into bottles. Other classifications include milk for cream, milk for ice cream, for milk powder, for butter and other products. The price scales down through the classes.

Producers claim they are losing money at the present price, the average of which is $1.80 per hundred pounds. Some months ago the board granted a 40-cent increase in class 1 milk but has not yet restored the reduction made about two years ago.

Local Prisoner Is Returned From Erie

Appears In Court There In Connection With Robbery Charges In That City

John P. Simison was returned to the Lawrence county jail today following a trip to Erie, where he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of robbery. Sentence was suspended on the understanding that he appear as a witness in court, when needed, against an accomplice in the robbery.

Simison was taken to Erie by Sheriff M. M. Ingham following the presentation of a petition from the Erie county district attorney in which it was set forth that he was wanted there for robbery. Judge Thomas W. Dickey made an order directing Sheriff Ingham to take Simison to Erie.

Simison has been in jail here since his sentence to the Western Penitentiary from nine to 18 years on a charge of robbing an A & P store on East Washington street. He will now be taken to the Western Penitentiary to serve his time, and if the Erie authorities want him he will be taken there to testify.

TROOPER INDICTED ON THREE COUNTS IN GIRL'S DEATH

(International News Service)
MAUCH CHUNG, Pa., Oct. 5.—State Police Corporal Benjamin Franklin today was indicted on three counts of murder, voluntary and involuntary manslaughter for the fatal shooting last June 5 of little Joan Stevens, the Nesquehoning school girl who talked of gangsters and holdups but took dolls to bed with her.

Suspended since the killing and at liberty under $5,000 bail on homicide charges, the 33-year-old trooper was named in true bills handed down this morning by the Carbon county grand jury to Judge William Thomas.

Date of Franklin's trial was not immediately set although earlier it had been reported he would be brought before a jury sometime next week if indictments were returned against him.

HITLER'S ADDRESS BEING AWAITED FOR PEACE PLAN

when made, will be carefully examined and that they will be measured and tested in the light of the aims for which Britain and France are fighting.

Lord Halifax's remarks were followed by a secret meeting of the conservative "committee of 1922"—one of the most influential groups in commons, which examined the foreign secretary's words as well as those of Prime Minister Chamberlain for a definite clue to the conditions under which Britain will consider making peace with the Reich.

At the same time the parliamentary labor party called a secret meeting for today for further consideration of the situation.

Conservative leaders were reported to have agreed that three vital factors must be considered in any peace proposals that Chancellor Hitler may advance. These are:

- 1—The conditions under which the proposals are offered.
- 2—By whom they are offered.
- 3—The security which might be attached to any agreement.

Support Government
Meanwhile the Midland group in commons, at a secret session, adopted a resolution of "unqualified support to the government's policy in prosecution of the war."

Lobby circles were still inclined to support the view that peace plans will be formulated, but there was much speculation as to how they might be put forward, and by which country they might be offered to England.

British authoritative quarters believed that the major German attack on the west will be held back pending the "peace" moves and that the assault, if and when it comes, will either be around one end of the French Maginot line or from the air.

The advent of winter will seal the Swiss front before November, leaving Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg—neutral countries—as the area through which the British expect Germany to strike.

British circles therefore expect that the British troops in France may have to bear the brunt of a possible German advance against Belgium as a means of invading France.

In London it is believed that neither the French nor Germans will attempt to assault the Siegfried or Maginot lines because of the tremendous losses such attempts would entail. Fierce battles may be expected along the Franco-German border, it was stated, but they will be chiefly aimed at jockeying for superior positions rather than at storming the opposing defenses.

Meanwhile, it is believed that the German autumn drive may come from the air. But if such an attack comes, the British appear confident that the royal air force, supported by the nation's anti-aircraft defenses, will prove victorious.

DIPLOMATIC MANEUVERS ARE HELD IN MOSCOW

ish foreign minister has discussed matters with both war commissar Klement E. Voroshilov and trade commissar Mikoyan.

Mystery in Balkan Plan
Mystery still covered the Soviet's aims with regard to the Balkans and no official comment could be obtained on foreign reports that the Soviet is attempting to gain domination of that area by means of the projected pact with Turkey.

(Reports in London indicated Russia has demanded that Turkey close the strategic Dardanelles to other British and French fleets or other actual or potential enemies of Russia and also that Turkey abandon her military agreements with Britain and France.)

On the Baltic front the Soviet foreign commissar likewise pressed the Russian expansion program. Following ratification at Tallinn of the Soviet-Estonian pact, permitting Moscow to station 25,000 troops in Estonia, the Lithuanian foreign minister Juozas Urbys, was scheduled to return to Moscow today after a brief conference with the Lithuanian cabinet at Kaunas.

Official Lithuanian quarters preserved silence regarding these negotiations, but it is believed that Russia is seeking an agreement with Lithuania similar to that with Estonia, which made the latter nation a "kind of protectorate" of the U. S. S. R.

Similarly, negotiations continued with Latvia. Latvian foreign minister Wilhelm Munters is still in Moscow where he has been joined by Oswalds Colins, president of the civil department of the Latvian senate, who presumably is to be in drawing up an agreement giving Russia additional influence and privileges in Latvia.

This agreement also is expected to follow the lines of the Estonian-Soviet pact, which together with the Lithuanian agreement will give the Soviet union wide control over the Baltic area.

Still, if the sinking of English ships won't get us into war, what difference will it make if they are carrying American munitions?

The Great Game Of Politics

conditions appalling to contemplate and which it is doubtful we could meet without catastrophe. In addition, another war for us would almost certainly push an already weakened Federal financial structure to the brink of bankruptcy—perhaps over the brink.

IN BRIEF, another war for us means damage and danger not for one class but for everybody. If the history of the last war does not teach us that these things are unescapable, then our stupidity is great, indeed. It is also apparent that even if the embargo is lifted and a flood of war orders comes, it will not be greatly to the advantage of the people as a whole or of any particular group. For one thing, though, it would decrease unemployment, the cost of living, despite government gestures, would rise as it did last time until increased wages meant no increase at all. In the second place, it is quite clear that Congress, one way or another, will take the profit out of war orders.

IN the third place, increased governmental expenditures for national defense, even if we remain neutral, mean much higher taxes not only on corporations but upon individuals. In the fourth place, expansion of business plants for a war which may last six weeks, six months or six years, involves risks which few balanced business men want to take. Embargo or no embargo, one great airplane manufacturing company has definitely decided not to enlarge its plant. It will fill war orders as they come with its present equipment. The reason given is that when the war is over it does not want to have on its hands an acute labor situation which it can not handle.

ALSO, with the lifting of the embargo some disappointment will be the failure of war orders to materialize in bulk. England, for example, naturally will buy first from Canada and second from South America, where she can make credit and barter arrangements. She will buy from us of course, because she can't get all she wants anywhere else. But she will buy here last because she will have to pay cash. The same, of course, is true of France. And, finally there is the belief that either war or a war boom will interfere with an orderly but definite business recovery which was developing in spite of New Deal policies. Considering all these things, it ought to be clear to even the muddled mind why the weight of business and finance is thrown toward keeping us out rather than pushing us in.

Glass Companies Continue Working Despite Threats

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—District plants of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company continued operations today despite a threatened strike announced by a C. I. O. Federation of Flat Glass Workers leader in St. Louis, Mo.

Local union officials said they had received no walkout orders. The threatened strike had been announced by Robert McVay, St. Louis district president, unless workers in the company's Crystal City, Mo., plant were included under an existing contract covering 11 other plants.

District plants include those at Arnold, two at Ford City and Creighton. Company officials said an agreement had previously been reached with the union to hold the N. L. R. B. order to exclude the Missouri plant until action is taken by the United States district court at St. Louis on an appeal from the N. L. R. B. decision.

BERWICK, Pa., Oct. 5.—The American Car and Foundry Company plant at Berwick today made ready for the construction of 329 light tanks under a $6,000,000 contract awarded the company by the war department.

The contract, one of the largest received by the company in years, specified early delivery. Work on the tanks, which will be of the most modern type, will get under way immediately.

The present working force of 2,000 men at the Berwick plant is expected to be increased by several hundred persons as a result of the order. The tanks it was said, will cost $17,790 each and will be capable of high speed.

(International News Service) VANCOUVER, B. C.—Beside the name of Albert McCarthy, 17, on the records of St. Paul's hospital, is written an ailment unique in the annals of the institution. It is: "Seal bite!"

Albert, swimming at a Vancouver beach, suddenly felt his left wrist painfully and roughly seized. Yelping in astonishment, Albert looked into the water—and into the eyes of the seal. The seal looked at Albert, and left—hurriedly.

See No A.F. Of L. Approval For Third Term Program

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—Stripped of its 1940 implications and pared of its unreserved pledge to support the New Deal, the third term resolution submitted to the American Federation of Labor will come out of the convention mill ground down to simple commendation of President Roosevelt's "humanitarian objectives," informed labor men predicted today.

Those predictions were based on strong and intermediate criticisms of New Deal agencies already aired in reports or from the convention platform.

The National Labor Relations board—appointed by the president—has been scored again and again. The anti-trust investigation of the building trades has been labeled a "witch hunt" and Thurman Arnold, the assistant attorney general directing it, criticized.

The TVA, a New Deal project, is under fire for refusing to accept a closed shop.

Governor May Urge Give-A-Job Plan For State

General Appeal Is Being Considered By Chief Executive Of State

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Oct. 5.—A general appeal to home owners and businessmen through the state to "give a job" to an unemployed worker is being seriously considered today by Gov. Arthur H. James.

Deeming the present time, with a definite business upturn in sight, propitious for such an appeal, Governor James revealed such a plan was being given serious consideration following a conference with cabinet and legislative officials.

Under the plan, if the governor and his advisers decide it is feasible, every home owner and businessman would be asked to do his part to provide some extra employment. Property improvements could give employment to many, said the governor, who estimated that there were at least 1,000,000 homes in the state in need of some repairs.

Business would be asked to employ extra men on the theory that, in the words of the governor, "it might

The labor department has been accused of squeezing the progressive miners out of the Appalachian field by throwing its support to the CIO United Mine Workers in securing a closed shop contract.

President William Green has spoken out against the government entering the construction field with relief labor and even mildly chided President Roosevelt for not restoring the prevailing wage on federal projects by executive order.

Summing up all these points the consensus is that any resolution pledging unqualified support to the New Deal and coupling the president with "the crucial issues of 1940," as the original resolution had it, would be to go away beyond the sentiment of the convention and would be certain to provoke bitter debate.

There is little doubt that the resolutions committee will report a resolution commending the president but it will fall far short of the enthusiastic entry of the Connecticut Federation of Labor.

be better to pay it out in wages rather than through taxes."

"We're on the upswing now, at least temporarily," said the governor, "and we might as well take advantage of it." Governor James said he feared that the present business upswing, occasioned by the war, would have the effect of putting skilled men to work rather than unskilled men, leaving the latter still on the relief rolls. The "give a job" plan would be designed to take up the slack.

Five "Numbers" Men Are Nabbed

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—The mobile "numbers" headquarters which served the entire Homestead and Turtle Creek valley districts wasn't open for business today—because the law finally caught up with it. County detectives made a sudden raid yesterday and nabbed five men who will be charged with operating a lottery, they said. The men moved their headquarters from day to day, using an especially-equipped automobile, detectives claimed.

After several weeks of effort, a special investigator trailed the men to their latest headquarters and the raid was pulled off before they had a chance to move to a different locale.

Five Injured In Three-Car Crash On Volant Road

Volant Youth Suffers Broken Leg, And Four Others Are Bruised In Collision

Five young men were injured, none seriously, in a collision which involved three automobiles on the Volant road, just north of East Brook, at midnight last night. All are in the Jameson Memorial hospital, where they are undergoing treatment.

According to the information secured by Pennsylvania motor police, a coupe owned by Raymond Badger of R. F. D. No. 1, Portersville, and driven by Miss Mary V. Brockelhurst of Volant, was being driven in the direction of Volant, when a machine driven by John Edwards, aged 18, of Volant, in which Clarence Drake, aged 16, of Volant was a passenger, attempted to pass the Badger car, in the face of an on-coming machine driven by James Ashcom, aged 23, of New Wilmington. The Edwards car and the Ashcom car collided head-on, and the Badger car in turn crashed into the car driven by Edwards, all three of the cars being badly damaged.

Ambulances were summoned and the five young men were brought to the Jameson Memorial hospital, where it was found that Drake had sustained a possible fracture of the left leg. The others escaped with bruises and lacerations, which are said to be not serious.

Mr. Badger and Miss Brockelhurst suffered only minor injuries, which did not require treatment.

Plan To Change Number Of Mail Route In Area

Some Additional Territory Will Also Be Added To Old Route 8, October 16

With the New Castle Post Office changing their rural routes and doing away with old Route 7, Mahoningtown Route 8 will also undergo a change and be known in the future as Mahoningtown Route 7. This change will be effective as of October 16.

According to Edwin McBride, superintendent of the Mahoningtown Station, some additional territory will be added to the Mahoningtown route that was formerly Route 7, along the West Pittsburg road.

In order to aid in the change and prevent confusion, McBride stated today that all residents of Route 8 will be affected by the change should notify their publication offices of the change of address and generally notify their correspondents.

After October 16, there will no longer be a rural route here known as Number 8.

Britain In Favor Of Sea Safety Belt Plan Of Americas

Belief Grows In London That Half Of German U-Boat Fleet Is Destroyed

(International News Service) LONDON, Oct. 5.—While belief grew in well-informed British circles that half of the German U-boat fleet has already been destroyed in the first five weeks of war, Great Britain today expressed its full approval of the Panama conference plan for a wide "sea safety belt" around the Americas.

(Editor's Note: This dispatch was passed by the British censors in its present form. A cable was immediately sent from New York to London asking further details and substantiation of the belief that half of the German submarine fleet has been sent to the bottom. In reply came this message from London: "It is not permitted to embellish the 50 per cent claim or handle it differently than written.")

Great Britain, it was said, is prepared to do everything possible to help the United States and other American nations to carry out the Panama sea zone project. A statement to this effect was made on unimpeachable authority.

Meanwhile a speed-up of the search of American and other neutral ships at contraband points was promised, especially if co-operation of the owners and captains can be secured.

Little Support For Proposal To Seek Armistice

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The proposal of Senator Ed Johnson (D) of Colorado, for a senate vote calling on President Roosevelt to seek an armistice in the European war attracted little support today.

Johnson's resolution, terming the time "auspicious" and asking the president to seek with other neutrals a means of bringing the war to an end, was referred to the senate foreign relations committee. But the committee chairman, Senator Pittman (D) Nevada, does not plan to hold a meeting of the committee again during the special session of congress. Therefore, it appeared Johnson's resolution had little chance for consideration by the committee.

Pittman joined a number of other senators in opposing the measure today, following Johnson's action in introducing it. "I think such a move as is suggested in this resolution is a matter entirely up to the president," said Pittman. "That is his field, not ours. He has access to a great deal of information concerning the war, and he must decide whether the time is ripe for such a move from his side of the Atlantic."

"It is easily conceivable that under certain circumstances such a move might be an un-neutral direction rather than a neutral one."

Aiken Building Used For WPA Classrooms

Educational And Recreational Work Under Way In Old School Building

For half a century and more, boys and girls of that part of the East Side known as "Reynoldstown" attended the old school on Pearson street known first as the Central school and later as the W. N. Aiken school.

With the school closed as a unit of education under the New Castle Public School system it has been taken over by the Education and Recreational divisions of WPA and is now in use by these organizations.

The principal's office has been made the project headquarters and the rooms of the building are being used for the various endeavors, game rooms, hand craft rooms, safe driving school, art and dramatic rooms, writer's project, all of them housed in the Aiken building and because of the size of the rooms there is ample space.

A new safe driving class is about to be organized but is delayed until the arrival of automobile which will be used in driving tests. One class which has finished the class room instruction is ready for the actual driving experience.

The educational work is under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Howley and the recreation work under the direction of Frank Leonard.

PLAYING "POSSUM"

The "possum feigns not sleep but death to foil its enemies. The animal's habits in general, in hunting and feeding, are sly, and when caught or struck by a blow, it falls at once into an appearance of death—even to the extent of protruding tongue and film-covered eyes. It is said that the animal may be severely hurt without causing it to abandon its pose, even to the extent of moving an eyelid. The moment opportunity for escape appears it regains its feet and flees. The aim of the pretense is to deceive the enemy into relaxing its watchfulness.

See Additional Appointments To High Court

Three More Appointments Viewed As Possibility In Near Future

REPORT TRIO

WILL RESIGN

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The Supreme Court will reconvene the first Monday in October with Capitol observers speculating on the possibility that President Roosevelt may have the opportunity of appointing three more Justices before his term of office ends early in 1941.

The three who figure in the speculation are Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes who has had one of the most notable public careers in American history; Justice James Clark McReynolds and Justice Pierce Butler.

The Chief Justice will observe his 78th birthday next April. He will mark his 10th anniversary as Chief Justice on next February 3, if he chooses to remain in that position.

When the chief Justice for the first time was forced to remain away from the court because of illness, toward the close of the last session, there were widespread rumors that he might retire. The Chief Justice, however, recovered and spent much of the summer either motoring in northeastern United States or recuperating at mountain resorts.

Opinions Differ
While some friends of the Chief Justice expect him to retire, others say that he will continue to preside over the court. The latter observers hold that the fact that there are four comparatively new Justices on the court together with the importance of the Chief Justice in guiding the Court through a transition period, will cause him to cling to his robes.

Until he was stricken with illness, the Chief Justice delivered as many opinions as his colleagues in addition to apparently handling with ease the additional burden of Chief Justice.

Justice McReynolds also will be 78 years of age early in 1940. His birthday anniversary is February 3. A native of Kentucky, tall and raw-boned, Justice McReynolds gives the appearance of unusual stolidity despite his advanced years. During the present summer interim, he travelled widely in the United States, renewing old acquaintances and visiting scenes of his boyhood days. Few of his friends anticipate an early retirement by him. Justice McReynolds, is a bachelor and this in itself, friends say, may cause him to cling to his court work because it is his only interest.

Butler Beset By Illness
Justice Butler, who possesses a massive frame, also suffered from illness during the present summer. Friends of the Justice insist that he will continue on the court for years. He is advancing toward the age of 76.

President Roosevelt has already appointed four of the nine Justices of the Court. He named Justices Black, Reed, Frankfurter and Douglas. One more retirement would permit him to name a majority of the court during his term of office and thus establish a modern day record.

While the High Court faces many important tasks in the coming year it appeared likely that it would be confronted with only a few constitutional decisions of first magnitude.

A law enacted just before the adjournment of Congress, however, increases the burden of the court. It must now supervise the entire judiciary, taking over administrative functions formerly lodged in the Department of Justice.

Excavation Work On Turnpike Now Near Completion

Two-Thirds Of Digging For Super-Highway Has Been Finished

HARRISBURG—Excavation work—the biggest task of the contractors building the 160 mile Pennsylvania Turnpike—is now nearly two-thirds completed.

Total excavation for cuts and fills will be about 25,312,810 cubic yards with an additional 763,070 cubic yards of rock to be taken from the seven tunnels.

Major items of work completed as of September 22 follows: excavation 15,886,300 cubic yards; concrete for bridges, drainage structures, etc., 141,901 cubic yards reinforced concrete pavement on roadway, 87,576 square yards.

A great concentration of road-builders' equipment representing an investment of about $30,000,000 by the contractors has made possible the rapid progress that construction of this super-highway between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh has followed since late last October. The highway is fast taking shape and contractors' officials, commission representatives and other authorized persons are now able to drive the subgrade for practically the entire distance.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—So far, the most noticeable effects of the war on this city have been a decided increase in marriage licenses and a decrease in German beer consumption.

Saturday, Sept. 9, showed a total of 138 marriage applications in City Hall compared with 85 on the same date of last year.

While it is possible that such an increase may be due in part to improved economic conditions, figures show that in 1917, on Saturday, April 7, the day after the United States declared war on Ger-

War Boom Aids State Industry

Banking Business Also Expected To Share In War-Created Business

BANK DEPOSITS GREW LAST YEAR

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Oct. 5.—Loosening of the purse strings of Pennsylvania capital was foreseen by James administration leaders today as industrialists rushed to obtain war-created business.

State banking officials saw in the war boom probable expansion in the field of credits and industrial investments. They foresaw a business boom greater than that of World War days in 1914-1918.

Increased financial activity since the outbreak of hostilities in Europe was noted by banking department heads. Revival felt by the heavy industries will be intensified, it was said, with repeal of the arms embargo and adoption of cash-and-carry trade with belligerent nations. From Secretary of Commerce Richard P. Brown came a favorable reaction to the cash-and-carry plan proposed by President Roosevelt.

Brown, pointing out that Pennsylvania's heavy-product industries would benefit most by the war boom, declared that "from the standpoint of industry, the cash-and-carry plan is most acceptable." He explained that additional markets for Pennsylvania products would be opened under the cash-and-carry plan.

In general, it was said, the state's banking picture has improved considerably in the 12 months preceding June 30 when more than $2,430,579.503 was deposited in Pennsylvania banks, trust companies, saving institutions and private banks—an increase of more than $88,757,596 over the previous year.

Continued business impetus, officials pointed out, would necessarily mean that banks would become increasingly active in handling industrial loans, investments, credits and deposits.

At the same time, it was asserted, deposits of private investors, which have been increasing in recent years, would be favorably affected by the opening of new employment and increased payrolls.

Large Attendance At Y.M.C.A. Events

Believe Attendance Record Established Last Night For Ordinary Schedule

While its 1939-40 season was inaugurated only Monday, the New Castle Y. M. C. A. believes it established an attendance record last night not equalled or approached (except for special events) in almost 10 years. General Secretary Robert L. Meermans and his staff feel the new year will be a busy one. The association building last night was alive with "Y" and club activities. From the swimming pool to the top floor the fun was in swing. Games varied from ping pong to swimming.

The crowd began arriving at 4 in the afternoon, when boys' classes got under way. It kept up through the dinner hour and continued all evening. Volley ball, handball, checkers, basketball and other games took attention, while a group of Hi-Y clubs, the Key Men's club and The Townsmen, young men's service club, held regular meetings.

Assistant General Secretary Henry T. MacNicholas, greatly impressed with the evening turnout, commented:

"It certainly looks like a big fall and winter for the association. Last night was just a regular night, too, with nothing special planned."

Grain Crop Is Above Average

Despite Drought Conditions Of Past Summer, Grain Crops In State Good

YIELDS BETTER THAN EXPECTED

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—Despite drought conditions in mid-summer, Pennsylvania's grain crops will be above the 10-year average in yield, the U. S. Department of Agriculture predicted today in its final weekly review of state crop and weather conditions for the season.

Declaring that the summer had been "fairly satisfactory," the summary added:

"The main crops, such as corn, wheat, rye and barley will yield above the 10-year average in most regions. The oats crop was rather short. Drought conditions set in as the grain was maturing and resulted in a large portion of the crop having very short straw."

"However, the grain was of good quality, and in many instances yields were better than expected. The hay crop, especially timothy and clover, was rather short, but favorable weather for cutting and curing helped to bring the results to a fairly satisfactory basis. Alfalfa did not suffer so much from drought as the other hay crops, and gave a finished crop that was not far below the normal."

"Truck crops suffered considerably from the summer droughts but not enough to reduce the supply below reasonable demands. Orchard fruits ranged considerably, according to regions, from poor to good. Peaches were most affected by the summer drought and in most regions were rather small in size. Apples were above the usual quality, and yields were the best for the last four or five seasons."

Freshmen Put Through Paces At Westminster

Annual Fall Routine Is Now In Progress At New Westminster

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Oct. 5.—Freshmen obsequiously giving preference to upperclassmen; freshmen singing the "Victory Song" anywhere along the street; freshmen wearing blue and white dinks; freshmen parading to classes with huge name cards hung on their backs; freshmen boys with one trousers leg rolled to the knee and a couple days growth of beard on their faces; freshmen girls with green ribbon bows in their hair and no make-up on their faces—it may look insane to an outsider, but it's only a part of the routine of freshmen regulations to the students of Westminster college.

The rules, made and enforced by the Student Council and selected students from the sophomore class, will be in effect until Friday evening. Dinks, however, must be worn until Thanksgiving. Friday night, eve of Westminster's first home football game, freshmen will march in a body to the gymnasium, where they will burn their name cards in a pep-meeting bonfire and be led in singing and cheering by the cheerleaders. Tribulation, the following Monday evening, will be held in the gymnasium. Freshmen will arrive dressed as movie stars, and punishment will be meted out to those who have offended by breaking regulations. And then the freshmen can relax and wait until next year when it will be their turn to laugh at the freshmen.

County Sabbath Schools To Get State Banner

The Lawrence County Sabbath School Association has been notified that they will again be presented with banner at the 77th convention of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association which convenes in Williamsport next week, October 10 to 13, as the rating given them for the past year's work is 97 per cent. As their rating for the previous year was 96 per cent, this is a gain of 1 per cent.

In order to be a banner county, certain state association requirements must be met. For a number of years Lawrence county has been one of the outstanding counties of the state association. The banner will be presented to the Lawrence county delegation at the Friday, October 13 morning session of the state convention.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

MAKE NO CONCESSIONS WITH CHILD'S RETIRING TIME

There is such a thing as children getting too much sleep, I guess. Or at least so much sleep that it interferes with routines. I know this happened with the Dionne quintuplets a few years ago. As they grew stronger, I suppose they didn't need so much sleep, although we still saw to it they stayed in bed the prescribed hours.

Their routine called for them to waken at six thirty in the morning, but they began waking earlier and earlier until they were getting the poor nurses up at five thirty. That was a little too much, so we gradually cut down their afternoon nap a little bit until we had them getting up at a decent hour again. In the meantime those poor nurses weren't very happy.

It was very much better to have the afternoon sleep adjusted this way than to shorten it prematurely. If this is done, if you find that your child needs three hours sleep in the afternoon when he has been only getting two, you will have some job changing the routine. It is much easier to shorten the afternoon sleep than lengthen it. If you find you are in this unhappy position of having your child sleep longer than he is used to, the mother has to use plenty of will power.

By the end of the second year your child should still be walking about seven in the morning. He should be active until noon, and then have a sleep. The length of that afternoon sleep varies a good deal with children, but at two years it ought to be at least three hours. After that he should be active until supper and go to bed right after that.

Getting the child to bed right after supper begins quite early to be a problem. It is one that parents should tackle resolutely the first time they see signs of trouble. For if they don't, it is apt to become fairly serious.

Until now he has been a baby, and has instinctively obeyed the urge to sleep. Now, he is older, he likes to play, he likes to be up with the grown-ups. The importance of small children place upon staying up late is strange.

Just the other day something happened out at the nursery. Emilie wanted something or other the nurses had. Of course she was told that she wasn't old enough for whatever luxury it was she wanted. Whereupon young Emilie replied, "If I eat more and stay up late like you do, will I soon be able to have it?"

Usually it is the parents' fault when the child begins to rebel against going to bed right after supper. What happens is that with company present, little Bill is allowed to stay up late, "just this once." From then on the job of getting him to bed is doubly difficult. He has found that he can stay up late and he is bound he is going to.

So parents are well advised not to make concessions in this regard. I know it seems brutal and unkind to send him off to bed sometimes. But if you don't do it, then you are in for trouble, make no mistake about.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In times of trouble, it never pays to be too conspicuous. With the European war on, prices of big, beautiful diamonds are away down and small, lack-lustre little industrial diamonds are away up. Striking an average for all stones, the price is higher, but the bigger they come the harder they fall, and the farther.

A friend's report of the experience of an English family, meeting the war emergency, tells the story of the more regal gems. This family, like many others of England and France, sent their two children, with a governess, to this country. Forbidden by the British government to liquidate American securities, they sent to New York, for sale, a ten-karat, emerald-cut diamond, an ancestral stone, which had been appraised at $12,000. At this writing, the highest offer they have received is $4,500.

Many other English families hurriedly expatriating children or relatives also had put large diamonds on the market in New York. The result has been an over-supply of the better stones. At a recent auction sale of valuable precious stones by the largest pawn-brokerage house in New York there was no bidding whatever for the big sparklers.

It is not only the flood of European diamonds which is depressing the market. In spite of the recent market rise, the country is still in a "stop, look, and listen" mood that doesn't induce a plunge of $100,000 in a diamond, and some of them are worth many times that amount in normal times.

The above is restricted to the imposing gems which always move along nicely at top prices in the days of a boom market. Within the last few days there has been a slight advance in such stones as the average young American buys for his bride's wedding ring. But industrial stones are up from 35 to 40 per cent, and late reports are that they will go much higher. Many war machines, such as the elaborate range-finding and aiming gear of an anti-aircraft gun, are instruments of precision, and diamonds are needed to make them.

The Germans have had the most skilled cutters, but Britain has the best of the small diamonds pretty well sewed up, with about $12,000,000 worth in reserve, coarled before the war started by the Diamond Syndicate of London. Every country in the world is hanging onto its industrial diamonds, particularly Holland and Belgium, which are important centers of the diamond industry. The United States, also speeding up its production of war tools, is said to have a supply for about six or eight months.

War exalts utility, even if the useful thing be an instrument of destruction. It debases the merely symbolic and beautiful, the surplus gains of civilization, all the increments of leisure and the arts. There is macabre irony in the use of diamonds to make war implements. There was another note from England the other day about the sale of and precious edition of Shakespeare's sonnets for 50 pounds—an edition which brought 500 pounds at an auction a few years ago. Shakespeare never saw a London blackout, but like the Englishman of today he loved "This precious stone set in a silver sea." The speech of John of Gaunt in "Richard II" is in itself a precious stone which no wars have ever depreciated.

This royal throne of kings, this sceptred isle, This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars, This other Eden, demi-paradise; This fortress built by Nature for herself

Against infection and the hand of war; This happy breed of men, this little world, This precious stone set in a silver sea,

Which serves it in the office of a wall, Or as a moat defensive to a house, Against the envy of less happy lands.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 5.—During one of Governor James' disclaimers that he was a candidate for president, the chief executive remarked that far from having the presidential "bug," he'd never even had the gubernatorial "bug." "About the only bug I ever had," said the governor, "was the district attorney bug." He had never had any thought, he said, of going further in public life than Luzerne county prosecutor and his selection as a candidate for lieutenant-governor, following the end of his term in 1926 as district attorney, came as a great surprise to him.

The same held true, he added, when he was asked to become a candidate for superior court. "I liked that idea," the governor remarked humorously . . . and as for the governorship—"well," said the governor, "they asked me to run and when I said I was satisfied with being a superior court judge, they said 'well, anyways, don't say anything about your not wanting to run.' Then before I knew it everyone else had withdrawn and there I was."

For the first time in years, the state department of justice now has a woman deputy. She is Miss M. Louise Rutherford, of Philadelphia. Miss Rutherford, the third woman to hold the post of deputy attorney general, is regarded as one of the hardest working members of Attorney General Reno's staff. Her friends predict she'll be "getting places" in the future. Miss Rutherford's two women predecessors were Miss Sophia O'Hara, now secretary of the commonwealth, and Vashli Burr. Both served under Pinchot, Miss Burr in the first administration and Miss O'Hara in the second.

The reported patrol of Swedish waters presumably would be aimed at preventing further seizures of Scandinavian merchant vessels, many of which have been captured and escorted to German ports.

Many Warnings Received By U.S.

Warring Nations Send Many Notices About Mined Seas, Etc.

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Receipt of 36 special warnings from various European governments detailing military operations in certain Atlantic and Baltic waters prompted the United States government to advise American ships against approaching these areas, it was learned today.

Records of the U. S. Navy's hydrographic office disclosed that all of Europe's belligerent nations and Russia have taken considerable precaution in advising the United States of the location of various mine fields and other danger zones.

Description of mine areas were accompanied by warnings against attempted navigation by neutral shipping.

Germany has furnished the United States with seven such warnings since September 1. The seventh, received on Monday, was the one cautioning neutral ships against "improper behavior" zig-zagging and accepting British or French convoys. It was this last communication that was largely responsible for Secretary of State Hull's plea that American vessels steer clear of waters in the Atlantic and Baltic near belligerent activities.

The other German communications apprised the United States of the location of mined areas and restricted sea areas.

French authorities issued six warnings and Great Britain five. The French messages contained various instructions regarding the conduct of neutral ships while plying near the coasts of France and also gave some mine area locations. Britain, in addition to specifying various danger areas near England, including lighthouses, would be discontinued.

Russia, in one warning, announced establishment of a prohibited zone at the entrance of the White Sea and the discontinuance of numerous lighthouses.

Canada informed the United States that all lights, fog signals and radio-beacons on the Canadian coasts may be discontinued without notice. Drastic maritime regulations governing shipping at St. Pierre and Miquelon also were invoked by the dominion.

Loan Association Ads Bring Acclaim

New Castle Mutual Display Wins Third Place In National Contest

Newspaper advertising of the New Castle Mutual Building & Loan Association—the bulk of it in the New Castle News—won for the third place in the national all-media advertising competition of the United States Building & Loan League, it was learned today.

Ads appearing in The News during the past year were on display at the league's convention last week in Atlantic City.

"The New Castle Mutual," commented Secretary Norman E. Clark today, "thoroughly believes in advertising, particularly newspaper advertising, and it attributes much of its increase in business to the advertising program it has carried on and expects to continue as extensively in the coming year."

Noted advertising agency executives from New York and Philadelphia awarded places. Salt Lake City, Utah, took first place and Greensboro, N. C., second place.

Hickory Township Wet And Dry Vote Result Reversed

Recount Of Vote Gives "Wets" Township Victory By Three Votes

In a surprising reversal of results, Hickory township was declared "wet" Wednesday afternoon after the official board had opened the ballot boxes of the two precincts, counted them and attested them to the court. The vote shows Wet 167, dry 164, a victory for the wets by three votes.

The recount showed an unusual condition in the ballot boxes. Six ballots did not have the numbered corners torn off and 36 were marked both "yes" and "no" on the liquor question. One Non-Partisan vote had not been counted at all. On the return to the election board the vote was wet 113, dry 105. Several citizens of the township entered a petition asking that the ballot boxes be opened and that a recount be made.

The official count now shows: First precinct: Democratic, yes 24, no 26; Republican, yes 40, no 103. Second precinct: Democratic, yes 54, no 1; Republican, yes 49, no 33; Non-Partisan, no 1. The return made by the election board showed the following: First precinct: Democratic, yes 26, no 27; Republican, yes 41, no 104. Second precinct: Democratic, yes 32, no 19; Republican, yes 14, no 45.

Ellwood Goes To Butler Friday For Night Game

Murphy Expected To Return To Starting Position At Quarterback

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 5.—Ellwood City high school's football eleven will make their fourth appearance on Friday evening when they journey to Butler for the first of their two night games.

Though the Heinzer crew are rated as the favorites to win, the Ellwood team having gained confidence from their narrow victory over Rochester last Saturday will provide plenty of opposition for the home team.

Remembering last year's 33-6 shellacking by the Croft-Gills exception machine of 1938, the Tigers are out to avenge that humiliating defeat. Butler lost to New Castle by a 20-12 score and to Harbrack by a 6-0 count while defeating Mars and Zelenople by large scores. They are rated as a good team defensively with a fast passing attack.

No changes are contemplated in the Ellwood team with the exception of quarterback, which is expected to be held by the regular Tommy Murphy, who has been out of the last two games owing to injuries.

Start Fund For Band Uniforms

First Contributions Are Reported By Chamber Of Commerce

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 5.—The Chamber of Commerce announced today that the Vance and Old Furnace Coal companies have started the high school band uniform fund with a contribution of $100.00.

This is the second splendid civic deed that these two coal companies have done within the past ten days. The other civic project was the offer to put up traffic gates on Fountain avenue to the Circle school so as to protect the small kiddies that leave the school building at noon or night.

School officials are jubilant over the $100 contribution as it will nicely start the purchase of some badly needed new uniforms for their band.

It was estimated that a fund of some $2,000 will have to be raised in order to outfit the large band with the snappiest uniforms that can be purchased.

A truck had picked up the garbage, and radio police stopped it before the stuff was dumped into a scow for disposal at sea. Two hours of search by the policemen resulted in recovery of the ring.

THIS LOCAL LADY JOINS OTHERS IN PRAISING VENDOL MEDICINE

Well known resident declares it relieved sour stomach, gas, acid risings, palpitation, and other troubles due to constipation. Advises all to try it.

MRS. WILLIAM A. DIBLEY

"I'm actually feeling better today than at any time in the past year, and Vendol must get all the credit for it," declared Mrs. William A. Dibley, who lives on route 2, New Castle, in a recent statement praising this famous Root, Herb, and Alkaline compound.

"I can't praise Vendol enough for the wonderful relief it brought me from the worst constipated condition anyone could have, and this is what caused so much distress in other ways."

"Everything I ate soured in my stomach, formed gas, bloated me out and made acid risings come up in my throat that burned like fire. I often felt there was a lump in my throat which I couldn't swallow. My breath was so short that my heart would palpitate wildly. I became so nervous that my sleep was light and I was often awake several times during a night."

"If Vendol had been made for my case alone, it couldn't have helped more than it did!"

"After taking it along with the little Vendol laxative tablets a few days, I get the most satisfying relief from constipation. Then I began to eat anything coming on the table but never having a sign of gas, acid indigestion, or palpitation later. I feel rested and strong now since my sleep is so peaceful and I am giving my experience because I feel I should let others know about Vendol, if they suffer from the same cause as mine."

Vendol has helped people living in this city and nearby vicinity so give it a chance to help you, too. All druggists sell Vendol, and it is especially recommended here by Eckerd's of New Castle, 118 E. Washington St.

Pearson-Walters Pitching Choices For Today's Tilt

Yanks With One Game In Bag Now In Driver's Seat; Seek Fourth Title

CHARLEY KELLER LOUDLY CHEERED

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

PROBABLE LINEUP
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The probable line-up for the second game of the World Series at the Yankee stadium today:

YANKS—
Werber, 3b; Crosetti, ss; Frey, 2b; Rolfe, 3b; Goodman, rf; Keller, cf; McCormick, 1b; Dickey, c; Lombardi, c; Selkirk, if; Craft, cf; Selkirk, if; Berger, cf; Gamble, if; Myers, ss; Dahlgren, 1b; Walters, p.
REDS—
Umpires—Reardon (N.L.), plate; Summers (A.L.), first base; Pinelli (N.L.), second base; McGowan (A.L.), third base.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Monte Pearson, a slender right-hander with more stuff on the ball than any pitcher on either of the contending teams, was expected to beat the Cincinnati Reds in the second game of the world series today and with that move the New York Yankees right to the threshold of their fourth straight triumph in the so-called fall classic. Quite within reason there seemed to be no doubt that Pearson would get the decision over Bucky Walters, the Reds' pitching choice, and even less doubt by this time as to ultimate outcome of the series.

As a result of yesterday's opening victory by 2 to 1 for Red Ruffing, with a sore arm, over Paul Derringer, who had everything except a triumph at the finish, babbling was renewed and went on unabated on the possibility of a Yankee clean sweep. Even if the Reds beat Pearson, it would mean that the Yankees still will remain favorites at an increasingly long price.

Yanks Look Good
When the Reds failed yesterday to get more than four hits off Ruffing, whose arm misery prevented his doing any curving to speak of, and couldn't win the ball game behind their best pitcher, the conjecture which caused some to predict a Yankee defeat in the series immediately was dispelled. By this time in the light of what has gone before it seems inevitable that the Reds must lose, probably on their home grounds, where the third, fourth and fifth games are scheduled for Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

As far as today's encounter is and was concerned, Pearson matched a record of 12 wins and five defeats against Walters' superb 27 and 11 record during the past season. However, Pearson has the Yankees behind him. That may and probably will prove of considerable benefit. Moreover, when he is right he is terrific, as he was in the third game of last year's world series, when he held the Chicago Cubs to five hits and one earned run and struck out nine.

At his worst he is a threat to life and limb of the customers in the stands, with lapses of wildness. However, Walters is new to world series competition, for one thing, and new to the kind of attack he will get from the Yankees. He could win and actually may, but doesn't figure to. Like Pearson, he is a right-hander. So was Derringer. But the latter couldn't or, at any rate, didn't win and apparently this is to be the fate of the one who would presume to stop the Yankees. They must prove by this time the lack of wisdom in even hinting that they might lose. The proper procedure quite obviously is to go along with the Yankees without the slightest reservations.

They added to the evidence of their greatness yesterday in a pitching duel that held a gathering of 58,541 pretty close to spellbound, except when they were cheering Derringer and, as it turned out, he was the wrong man. Rookie Charley Keller, Joe Gordon, Bill Dickey and Ruffing were the men who earned the applause in the final summing up. Perhaps Coach Art Fletcher, of the Yanks, should be included, too.

Crisci Integral Part Of Line At Western Reserve

Former New Castle High Tackle Tips Beam At 220 Pounds, Highly Recognized

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 5.—Frank Crisci, New Castle, did his share in holding up the powerful Red Cat line which was responsible for the defeat of the Dayton Flyers when they met the Reserve Red Cats in Cleveland last Saturday. Reserve won by one touchdown, 7-0.

Crisci is an integral part of the line, having played regular for two years. His 220 pounds combined with a dauntless fighting spirit make him a formidable obstacle for any team which may try to break through his position at tackle.

This hard hitting player is also a member of the University Players, dramatic organization, and a reporter for the school paper.

Next week the Red Cats go to Athens to meet the Bobcats of Ohio University. The following week they travel to Boston, returning October 20 to meet Baldwin-Wallace in a night game at Shaw Field in Cleveland.

Yankees Win First Battle By Score 2-1

Big Red Ruffing Has Best Of Paul Derringer In Slab Duel In Yankee Stadium

KELLER-DICKEY GIVE YANKS WIN

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—In a spectacular pitching duel bolstered by sensational plays by the New York Yankees' infield, the champions on Wednesday began the quest of their fourth straight World Series with a 2 to 1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in the first game of the 1939 classic.

The Yankees won the game in the last half of the ninth, when rookie Charley Keller tripped and Bill Dickey singled him home to break a 1 to 1 deadlock.

Dickey Wins Game

With that, big Red Ruffing, who entered the game with an ailing right arm, took the decision over Paul Derringer, strapping Red right-hander to reaffirm the championship as almost prohibitive favorites to retain their title.

Derringer all but throttled the vaunted Yankee attack until that fateful ninth, when, with one down, Keller, a freeman outfielder, making his first appearance in the World Series connected for those three bases to set the stage for the finisher by Dickey.

At that, Derringer, mixing his fast ball with deceptive slow stuff, allowed only six hits against four made by his own mates off Ruffing. Moreover, Derringer struck out 7 of the Yankees while an estimated crowd of 60,000 roared in approval of the near-perfect pitching they were witnessing.

There were no errors in the game as the two over-sized right-handers mowed down each side without runs in all except the fourth inning when the Reds took a 1-run lead, the fifth inning when the Yankees tied it and the ninth when the Yankees won the ball game.

Carnegie Tech Meets Temple On Saturday

(Special To The News)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—Some of the questions concerning the 1939 Carnegie Tech football team will be answered next Saturday when the Tartans engage their first major foe of the current campaign, Temple university at Philadelphia. The game will be the first of three in succession on foreign fields. The Skibos will not appear in Pittsburgh again until they tangle with Notre Dame on October 28.

Whether Carnegie will be a better team this year, or as good as it was in 1938, could not be determined after last Saturday's opener with Wittenberg.

The Wittenberg game hinted that Jerry White, a reformed halfback, may develop into a great fullback. There are fewer faster men playing college football today and his speed was particularly noticeable when he intercepted a pass on his four-yard line and outdistanced numerous pursuers in a 96-yard touchdown run.

Condit and Muha have again started their friendly race for ground gaining honors, but a third back promises to challenge them before the season is much older. He is Frank Jordano, slender Cumberland, Md., boy, who showed flashes of stardom last year, and who sparked Tech to the first touchdown against Wittenberg.

Neither Dunn, made-over lineman, nor Chris Moersch, his alternate, was particularly impressive at quarterback in the opener, but that position still is the biggest problem for the coaches. Dunn has excellent defensive play and fair blocking, but is not a runner. Moersch, a "spot" punter, which will start against Temple will be undecided until late in the week.

The Carnegie squad will leave Pittsburgh at midnight on Thursday, and its Philadelphia headquarters will be the Manufacturers Country club.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Johnny Dean, this city's ex-marine, who embarked upon a pugilistic career while in west coast service, makes his second start in this section tonight when he opposes Moose Brown of McKeesport in that city. To date Dean has participated in 26 battles, of which he won 15 decisions, scored five knockouts, one technical knockout, dropped two decisions and sustained a technical knee when he fractured a hand. His opponent tonight has not lost a fight since he turned professional.

After turning professional on the Pacific coast, Dean boxed Billy Soose of Farrell in a preliminary bout. Soose was given the decision. Dean maintains he should have had the award. When he boxed Freddy Lenn at Pittsburgh last spring, he claims he was not in the condition he should have been and hopes to emerge victorious in tonight's affair. At present he is the only professional fighter headquartered here.

Arturo Godoy of Chile will sail soon for New York for a possible titular heavyweight fight with Joe Louis, champion, in New York next January. . . . Kermit Monte will be of F. & M's lineup Saturday, having received a broken arm in the game with Upsala last week. . . . Steeplechase races will be staged next Wednesday and Thursday by the Rolling Rock Hunt Racing association for the benefit of the Industrial Home for Crippled Children, said Dick Mellon, Pittsburgh, today. . . . Because of a split decision, the NBA has recommended Joey Archibald and Harry Jeffra to fight again. Archibald is recognized as the featherweight champion. While waiting in the bleacher line for the Reds-Yanks game yesterday, Edward Christina, Cincinnati, took a heart attack and died. The Louisville Colonels and Rochester Red Wings each have won three games in the little world series.

West Virginia Will Meet Pitt

Panthers Prepare For Opening Battle In Stadium On Saturday

(Special To The News)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—Up in the air after their surprise win over Washington at Seattle, the Pitt Panthers, have to do is to get back in shape to meet that up and coming West Virginia eleven that got off to its best start in years last Saturday by beating West Virginia Wesleyan by a 44-0 score.

The Pitt coaches, who came back from scouting the Mountaineers had plenty of trouble to report to Charley Bowser, who was several thousand miles away anxious to get back with his team.

They told about two exceptionally good halfbacks, Harry Clark and Chuck Hockenberry, that are going to cause trouble all afternoon with their running.

They reported on a West Virginia second eleven, that was able to go along under its own power, an unusual feat for a West Virginia eleven. Particularly effective were the two reserve halfbacks Don McCann and Glenn Ellis.

Sleepy Glenn kept his passing attack under cover, taking to the air very seldom but his big backs ran at will behind a rugged line.

Defensively the Mountaineers will be led by Mike Gussie, who the 1938 Panthers rated as the best guard they faced all season. According to the Pitt scouts Gussie will be the best one the Panthers of 1939 will see.

In the meantime the Panthers face the possibility of entering the game with but two days' rest, bad weather keeping their planes grounded enroute from Seattle.

With this abbreviated practice period it will almost be necessary for the Panthers to take to the airlines again, in which case Pittsburghers will get their first look at Dick Casiano in a new role that of a forward passer deluxe.

Strength In Chrysler Has Stimulating Effect On Trading

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The stock market developed a stronger tone today after first hour indecision.

A stimulating influence was outstanding strength in Chrysler, which ran up more than two points to a new high for the year. The rest of the list improved in sympathy.

General Motors followed Chrysler up and advanced around a point. The steels started firm, sagged for a while and then firmed up. Bethlehem rose nearly a point.

The coppers were little affected by the fact all big producers met the new advance posted yesterday. Prices were irregular with International Nickel strong.

Some of the utilities were active and higher. American & Foreign Power preferreds scored gains running to two points.

General Electric was an active spot, starting on 2,000 shares. It was fractionally higher. Mail orders were better, and chemicals showed a stronger trend after yesterday's reaction.

Auto accessories were in demand with the motors. Electric Auto Lite advanced over a point. Elsewhere the undertone was firm.

Body Of Slain Woman Is Found Near Newark, N. J.

(International News Service)
NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 5.—The nude body of a slender brunette woman in her early thirties, murdered probably three months ago, was found today in a lonely thicket in suburban Livingston. She had been stripped, attacked and clubbed to death.

Near the murder scene were scattered bits of modish attire, remnants of a dress, a silk stocking, lingerie and a black, tooled high-heeled slipper. An empty whisky bottle also was found.

Police said there was every indication that the woman had struggled courageously to ward off her attacker. She had been beaten to death with a blunt instrument, possibly a club.

Preparedness Group To Have Demonstration

Will Test Arrangements Planned In Case Of Disaster In District

TEST TO OCCUR
HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Communications committee of the disaster preparedness group of the Lawrence county chapter of the American Red Cross will carry on a demonstration of the work that may be expected of this unit in case of a serious disaster occurring in the chapter jurisdiction, on Sunday, Oct. 8, at 10:30 a. m.

Francis Dufford co-ordinator, will be assisted by Arles Crum and a number of the amateur operators of New Castle and Lawrence county.

William Ice, owner of the New Castle airport, has donated his plane and entire flying facilities to the chapter to carry on these tests.

There are very few women operators in the United States, and New Castle boasts of having two of them. Miss Irene Robinson, W8QEV, and Mrs. C. A. Brown, whose call letters are W8QUD, will participate. Miss Irene Robinson will accompany Mr. Crum in Bill Ice's plane and will be chief operator of the portable mobile unit: W8LQW. Mr. Crum will be the second operator. On the field receiving the messages from the plane, which will circle over New Castle as well as Lawrence county, there will be four amateur operators under the supervision of C. A. Brown, who will receive all messages and transmit them to Arch Foster, Youngstown road. Communications will be had with Ellwood City, W8GUI; Pittsburgh, W8GJM; Alliquippa, W8CIR, and Youngstown, W8TAD.

As the only major disaster which Lawrence county may experience is flood, Mrs. C. A. Brown, W8QUD, will be stationed at the foot of the Pymatuning dam for observation purposes and will be in constant communication with the land offices under supervision of Mr. Foster. All communications from the field will be transmitted to the emergency headquarters where Chapter Chairman Ralph F. Davis and the disaster preparedness chairman, Paul Butz, and Co-Chairman Alex McCready will be stationed ready to report and transmit what is necessary to the proper authorities. Other amateur stations are: W8QEP, W8JNX, W8NQO, W8PYO, W8MHP, W8GUI, Ellwood City.

This demonstration is being conducted primarily to give the chapter an idea of what can be accomplished in case all communication facilities are wiped out. Co-operating at the same time with the Red Cross amateur operators will be the Pennsylvania Railroad company, who will use, in case of any emergency to their railroad, the same service the Red Cross uses in case of disaster. Any chapter members interested in seeing this are invited to the field, and Mr. McCready, co-chairman, feels assured that it will be of great interest.

In case of rain or bad weather the demonstration will be postponed.

Bucknell Head Sounds Warning

Dr. Arnaud Marts Says America Will Lose Most By Going Into War

(International News Service) LEWISBURG, Pa., Oct. 5.—Unalterably favoring England, France and Poland in their struggle against Hitlerism, the United States will find it "dreadfully hard to resist the impulse to jump into the European war," it was predicted here by Dr. Arnaud C. Marts, president of Bucknell university.

"Our chief temptations," Dr. Marts said, "will be these: the revulsion which the insolence and the cruelty of Nazi and communistic leaders will stir in us; the pity and the shame at seeing the destruction of life and property of those with whom we sympathize; the threat of democracy; and the fear that if these two great systems of despotism conquer Europe, they will then attempt to conquer us."

He warned that "we will not save democracy by going to war." On the contrary, he pointed out, "that will be the surest way to lose every element of freedom that we hold dear in America."

'Pint Size' Leader For Don Cossacks

Famed Leader Of Singing Soldiers Is Smallest Man In The Troupe

Cossacks are big fellows. The old time Cossack who rode down from the region of the Don river in Russia was a huge fellow, courageous and daring and ready for a fight with or without provocation.

There is one Cossack who is under sized, Serge Jaroff, the director of the Don Cossacks, who open the Metropolitan Concert Guild in the George Washington junior high school auditorium on Saturday night, October 7.

With his brother Cossacks, Jaroff was tossed into prison at Tsinglingir near Constantinople after their hopeless defense against the Red army. All of them could sing, time was heavy on their hands and Jaroff organized a male chorus.

Released into Bulgaria as exiles the chorus rehearsing for two years before going out into the concert field, but since then they have delighted millions of music lovers.

Their concert here should be a real treat.

Dry Spell Is Chased By Heavy Rains In State

Improved Soil Conditions For The Germination Of Winter Grains Reported

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Oct. 5.—Improved soil conditions for the germination of winter grains were reported by the U. S. Weather Bureau today as a direct result of four days' of heavy rains which ended the state's worst dry spell in a decade.

The bureau declared, however, that the rains arrived too late to benefit potato, corn, hay and fruit crops. Some of the late truck crops, including tomatoes, were aided, it was reported, and pastures were considerably helped by the rains.

In addition, the bureau said that springs and wells "improved greatly" all over the state.

Danger Eliminated
Meanwhile, the State Department of Forests and Waters said that danger of forest fires had been wiped out by the rains. Prior to the rainfalls, the department said, forest fire conditions were "exceedingly serious."

All communities in the state were warned again, however, by the department of health to conserve water supplies. Dr. John J. Shaw, health secretary said that despite heavy rains, replenishing dried-up springs and wells; water supplies in some parts of the state were still below normal.

DELAWARE FINDS LABOR SHORTAGE

(International News Service) WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 5.—A $4,250,000 building construction boom in the Wilmington area involving a dozen major operations is threatened with shortage of skilled labor within the next month.

Carpenters are already scarce, builders report, and workers may soon have to be imported from nearby states. Particularly heavy has been a trend toward increased home construction in Wilmington, it was said.

Members of the bar and others are arranging a postcard shower this week for Attorney William J. Moffatt, who is residing at the Masonic Home at Elizabethtown, Pa. Mr. Moffatt is in poor health and it is believed that remembrances from his friends will serve to cheer him up.

County commissioners are preparing to buy furniture for the newly fitted up rooms in the Boyles property. Interior work on the building is now practically completed, linoleum having been put down on the floors during the past two weeks. The rooms on the first and second floors are so well lighted, and the view is so extensive, that they will be the most cheerful rooms at the court house.

County Treasurer V. I. Mandich has furnished to the county commissioners a statement as to the finances of the county, as of October 2. It shows the following amounts on hand: General fund, $419,776.72; institution fund, $218,193.79; gasoline fund, $100,460.09; school and road fund, $16,540.98; lien fund, $536, and partial payment fund, $3,687.46. Total cash on hands, $759,195.04.

Edward M. Reiley, Jr., has filed his expense account as a candidate for controller on the Democratic ticket in Ellwood City, showing that he did not expend over fifty dollars. October 13th is the last day for filing expense accounts at the county commissioners' office. There are still a number of candidates who have not filed.

So far this year 555 hunting licenses have been issued at the county treasurer's office. This compares favorably with the number issued at this time last year. The big rush for licenses will not begin until near the opening of the rabbit season.

In the estate of the late Silas Wike, of Youngstown, O., a certified copy of his will has been filed here at the register and recorder's office on account of interests in Lawrence county.

Letters of administration in the estate of the late Cora Reno, of Shenango township, have been issued to Luther M. Reno by Register and Recorder Orville Potter. Letters in the estate of the late Jane Sankey, of Neshannock township, have been issued to Gertrude W. Fink.

The Home Owners Loan Corporation has filed an amicable action in ejectment at the prothonotary's office against Roy and Mary Rich to secure possession of a property on Grimes street.

Receipts and expenses of the county as shown by the records of County Treasurer V. I. Mandich for the month of September, were as follows: General fund, receipts, $11,815.35; disbursements, $44,541.39. Institution fund, receipts, $3,244.89; disbursements, $13,420.62. School and road fund, receipts, $15,639.28; disbursements, $18,088.94. Gasoline fund, receipts, $75; disbursements, $2,025.95.

Testimony was taken before a board of viewers at the court house yesterday on a claim of William Brittain for damages caused by reason of the improvement of the Moravia-New Galilee road. The county commissioners have settled several claims in various parts of the county during the past two weeks.
